Would you like to join the new Democracy Research Network?

The Democracy Research Network is a new initiative launched by Democratic Audit UK, an independent research organisation based at the London School of Economics (www.democraticaudit.com).

The network is an informal, multi-disciplinary grouping of people conducting research into democracy, human rights and constitutional issues, both within and outside academia. Its purpose is to help researchers collaborate, by sharing information and discussing new ideas.

Members have access to each other's contact details and areas of interest (using a private online database) allowing you to find and get in touch with people relevant to your work.

Just a few weeks after its launch over 60 researchers have joined the network – mainly based in the UK but with members also drawn from the US, Canada, Australia, the Netherlands, Ireland and elsewhere.

If you are interested in joining or finding out more, please get in touch with us on democraticaudit@lse.ac.uk.

Linked in.

You can also share information and engage in discussion with network members via our new LinkedIn group.